Help Rescue our Raptors

Eagles, owls, hawks, and other predators balance our ecosystems. But hundreds of these majestic animals die every year after eating rodents poisoned with second-generation anticoagulant rodenticides (SGARs). Mass Audubon is supporting local initiatives in towns and cities across Massachusetts to reduce and regulate the use of these dangerous rodent poisons. Interested in protecting wildlife from poisoning in your community? To sign up and learn more, go to massaudubon.org/rescueraptors.
